Lieutenant Colonel Yakhya Wisnu Arianto, Commander of the 501 Task Forces, shared that this interaction helps the military better understand the residents' challenges and fosters trust.

"Our mission is not only to protect but also to connect. Through these dialogues, we learn the people's needs and find ways to support them," he explained.

The visit received an overwhelmingly positive response from the residents of Sorry Village. One of the villagers, Rio Mujizau, expressed his heartfelt gratitude: "Praise God, thank you, Commander 501. God bless."
